GROWING LANDCARE

9 AND 10 MAY, BENDIGO

PROGRAM

About Landcare Victoria Inc.

Our vision is for rich and diverse Victorian landscapes, supporting productive farming, healthy ecosystems and thriving communities.

Landcare Victoria Inc. represents community landcare in Victoria. We support landcare to be strong, connected and effective. We are an influential voice for the Victorian landcare movement, supporting landcare communities to achieve integrated sustainable agriculture and environmental outcomes.

Landcare Victoria supports governance, strategy, advocacy, project development, training and professional development for our landcare networks and groups across the state.

With over 600 member groups, representing more than 17,000 households and an estimated 60,000 individuals, Landcare Victoria is one of the largest environmental volunteer organisations in Victoria, fostering on-ground community led action.

Program

Day 1 - Thursday, 9 May

From 8.30am

Registrations

9am - 9.30am

Smoking Ceremony and Welcome to Country - DJAARA

9.30am - 9.45am

Welcome - Claire Hetzel and Jane Carney, Landcare Victoria

9.45am - 9.50am

Agenda overview- Claire Flanagan-Smith , MC

9.50am - 10.15am

Opening address - Jill Karena, Foundation for Rural and Regional Renewal Landcare and placemaking

It seems everyone wants to strengthen the connection between communities and the places that they share these days - from the urban, rural and neighbourhood level to massive multipurpose spaces. We know that landcare has been doing this for decades, with diverse communities in catchments and landscapes across Australia, and could probably teach others a thing or two about what it takes to inspire and motivate people to work together to make places better.

10.15am - 10.45am

MORNING TEA

10.45am - 12pm

Workshop Sessions - attend one of the following sessions

Collaborating and combining land management practices

Join Oli Moraes from DJAARA, who will discuss and showcase partnerships and projects on Country featuring collaboration with private landholders. The session will highlight what principles would apply to landcare and different forms of engagement with First Nations groups. An overview of case studies and a snapshot of cultural competence training will be followed by a discussion, providing time to talk about what works well and the importance of relationship building as first steps to engagement with Traditional Owners.

Aggregating action for landscape scale impacts

Landcare Networks have been driving a number of Landscape Restoration Projects across Victoria with support from philanthropy, government and their local communities. The wide-ranging requirements and support needed to get large scale projects off the ground means landcare has had various degrees of success in implementing such projects in the past. Be it financial, policy settings, coordination of resources or landholder uptake, there are various lessons to be learnt from such projects. This session will explore how landcare can make an impact at scale.

Program

Day 1 - Thursday, 9 May

12pm - 1pm

LUNCH

1pm - 2.30pm

Panel Session - Water in the Landscape

A panel of practitioners, including Sophie Bickford (Biolinks Alliance), David Hardwick (Soil Land Food), Erin Healy (Mulloon Institute), Rohan Hogan (North Central CMA) and Ross Colliver (landcare volunteer), will contribute to a discussion around the practice of returning and retaining water for the landscape. The panel will discuss what the contribution of landcare to the field of rehydrating the landscape might look like in the future, and how it may reshape our work, skills, policy and financing.

2.30pm - 3pm

AFTERNOON TEA

3pm - 4.30pm

Peer to Peer Facilitated Learning Session

- Up to 5 local landcare groups/networks, each giving a lightning presentation (5 minutes).
- Facilitated round table discussions on the topics discussed in presentations.

4.30pm

CLOSE

6pm - 9pm

DINNER (All Seasons Resort) - Geoff Park, Natural Decisions

Geoff's presentation will focus on the Moolort Plains wetlands and the history, values and conservation efforts that have been led by the Moolort Landcare Group. It will feature a fantastic video showing drone footage of the wetlands taken in January 2023. 2022 was the wettest year on record for the Moolort Plains, and the filling of the wetlands led to an influx of significant bird species, many of which bred successfully during this time.

MC - Claire Flanagan-Smith, RMCG

Claire is a Principal and Director of RM Consulting Group, a business renowned for its multidisciplinary approach to supporting regional communities and landscapes. For two decades, she has worked with and learned from a diverse range of stakeholders – including environmental agencies, Traditional Owners, farmers, and all levels of government – to improve community strength and environmental sustainability. Claire is a skilled facilitator, whose approach is grounded in system theory: the understanding that it is only by working together with interdisciplinary knowledge and experience, and the willingness to learn that we can protect what matters most and solve the complex challenges of our time.

Opening Address - Jill Karena, FRRR

Having grown up in a farming community in New Zealand, Jill has lived and worked in rural and regional communities throughout her life. Her strong commitment to strengthening how communities prepare, react and respond to change and crisis, particularly in rural and regional areas, has seen her take the lead on community recovery after major emergencies such as the Black Saturday fires in Bendigo and multiple bushfires in the Macedon Ranges. Jill has worked in the private and not-for-profit sectors and all levels of government. Her previous roles have also included journalism, wool classing and natural resource management. She has a Post Graduate Diploma in Rural and Regional Planning and is a graduate of the LGPRO Executive Leadership Program. Outside of work, Jill and her partner enjoy life on a rural property in Elphinstone with lots of animals including the Bullmastiffs that she breeds and shows.

Claire Hetzel - CEO, Landcare Victoria Inc

Claire is the CEO of Landcare Victoria Inc, the peak body for landcare in Victoria, representing 600+ Member Groups and over 17,000 households and 60,000+ individual members. With almost 20 years' experience working in a broad range of not-for-profit organisations, Claire has a passion for enabling community-driven initiatives. Her diverse skill set has been honed working across landscape restoration, urban forestry and urban agriculture, as well as in the education and health sectors. Claire brings a dynamic and forward-thinking approach to the CEO role and is committed to supporting the organisation's Member Groups, while enhancing the collaborative impacts of landcare and its partners.

Jane Carney- Chair, Landcare Victoria Inc

Jane is a livestock producer from Rosewhite in northeast Victoria where she runs a beef enterprise on 426 hectares with a focus on breeding high performance Angus cattle. Jane grew up with intensive irrigated agriculture and has spent her professional career working within the agricultural sector in Australia and the USA. Jane believes that farmers as land stewards have a responsibility to the community to farm sustainably and in doing so, have an opportunity to be part of the solution for climate change. Jane has been Chair of the Landcare Victoria Inc. Board since May 2021.

Oli Moraes - Dja Dja Wurrung Clans Aboriginal Corporation

Oli works at the Dja Dja Wurrung Clans Aboriginal Corporation (DJAARA) as program manager for Galk-galk Dhelkunya (forest gardening). Oli has experience working with First Nations and local communities on natural resource management, conservation and restoration across Australia and Pacific Island Countries. Oli is passionate about enabling Traditional Owner leadership and self-determination.

Workshop Session - Aggregating action for landscape scale impacts

Lori Arthur - Connecting Country

Lori is the current Director at Connecting Country, based in the Mount Alexander region in Central Victoria. She came to Connecting Country after working in various conservation and land management roles, largely with local government in Melbourne, including on-ground delivery of natural resource management projects, biodiversity planning and community engagement. Her passion is working with community and connecting people with nature at the grassroots, with a keen focus on working with landcare and other community groups, intersecting with the government and philanthropic sectors. When she's not working, she's kept pretty busy with family life, often riding, bushwalking or paddling in and around the local environs with her two young boys and her kelpie, Dusty. Any spare time is spent in the garden with Lizzie, the resident blue tongue.

Panel Session - Water in the Landscape

Sophie Bickford - Biolinks Alliance

Sophie is a Conservation Ecologist deeply motivated to apply her expertise to real world ecological-social problems. After completing her PhD at The University of Adelaide, Sophie spent 7 years researching distribution patterns of biodiversity at the CSIRO Centre for Plant Biodiversity Research. She was appointed a Lecturer in Biogeography at Monash University in 2007. Sophie worked for Carbon Planet as their Chief Scientist, developing methodologies for conserving ecological-services using climate (carbon) and biodiversity markets. As Executive Director of Biolinks Alliance since 2010, she relishes the challenge of growing an emerging organisation to implement large-scale and tenure blind conservation in Victoria.

Ross Colliver - Riddells Creek Landcare

Ross is prototyping ways for landcare groups in the Jacksons Creek and Deep Creek catchment of the upper Maribyrnong to appreciate waterways and understand how water is managed in the landscape. Creek Stories tells the stories of creeks and the people looking after them. The idea here is that to do more, first appreciate what's being done already. The Water Think Tank brings together environmentalists across the two catchments to understand how water is managed in all of its manifestations - as creeks, water supply, waste water, stormwater and groundwater. The guiding idea is to improve management of water, understand how it works.

David Hardwick - Soil Land Food

David is a professional agroecologist and Director at Soil Land Food, a small agroecology consultancy. For over 20 years he has worked on rural landscape, farming and food systems projects. He develops and delivers many of the extension projects for Soil Land Food across Australia. He worked in community development and then horticulture before completing a dairy traineeship on an organic dairy in NSW. Since then, he has had a wide-ranging career working in both extension, management and technical roles. These include Landcare extension, agronomy, soils, agribusiness, biofertiliser R&D and manufacturing, organics, training, and consulting positions. For many years he also helped run a regional farmers market business with his wife. Recent projects he has worked on include the Mulloon Institute's capacity building projects, the HASH Soils project and developing the Rural Landscape Logic approach to rural planning. David's passion is agroecology and empowering farmers with knowledge and skills so they can make decisions that make a difference!

Erin Healy - Mulloon Institute

Erin is an environmental engineer experienced in landscape remediation, natural resource management and agriculture through her work in environmental consulting and involvement with NSW Local Land Services and Landcare. Erin is a graduate from the University of Newcastle with honours and has recently completed postgraduate studies with Southern Cross University in Regenerative Agriculture. Erin is passionate about the role of agriculture in restoring and improving ecosystem health and landscape resilience. Erin uses her technical skills and ability to read the landscape to support the preparation of Landscape Rehydration Plans.
